EDITOR'S NOTE

PURPOSE: As a continuation to the ten-year Faculty & Staff Scholarly and Creative Works 1996-2005, this is the first compilation of an annual publication that will be printed to recognize the outstanding accomplishments of the faculty at USI. We will continue recognizing these achievements in a yearly report of faculty works, which will be merged into a single compilation every ten years for use in the reaccreditation process.

INFORMATION COLLECTED: The information in this report was supplied by colleges based on individual faculty members' annual evaluations. Corrections and additional entries were provided by individual staff and faculty members after the release of two drafts. The first draft was distributed in print form at the April 10, 2008, Reception for Scholarly, Creative, and Professional Achievement at USI. An electronic distribution to colleges followed on April 17. The second draft was distributed electronically in June 2008.

WHAT IS INCLUDED: This report is limited to scholarly and creative works completed in the calendar year 2007. In keeping with USI's broad definition of scholarly and creative works, the report includes listings of books, book chapters, book and journal reviews, encyclopedia entries, published articles (i.e. newspaper, magazine, journal, website, etc.), conference presentations, performances, exhibits, patents (issued date in 2007), and projects. The name of the USI producer of each work is bolded, and when there are multiple USI authors in different departments the entry has been duplicated under each name. Entries, in which there are multiple USI authors in the same department, are alphabetized under the first name appearing in the entry. Grants are listed together in a separate section following the college listings.

WHAT IS NOT INCLUDED: While this is an inclusive list, it does not include many aspects of professional activities that are nevertheless valued and rewarded at USI. This report does not, for example, include service activities, leadership roles, guest lectures, or organizing, facilitating, moderating or participating in workshops or conferences, regardless of whether or not such roles were the result of invitations. No items that are forthcoming or accepted for publication or presentation are included; such items will be included in the report for the year in which they are published or presented.

FORMAT: This publication implements a consistent formatting and documentation style modeled after The Chicago Manual of Style, which is the most common citation style for interdisciplinary bibliographies.

ARCHIVE OF WORKS: Rice Library maintains an archive of all faculty publications and presentations. Copies of your work submitted to Rice Library will be gratefully received and cataloged. Furthermore, all books donated for archiving are also ordered for the general collection. Materials should be addressed to Jennifer Greene, Rice Library.

CALL FOR CORRECTIONS: We apologize in advance for any omissions or inaccuracies. When we have been able to identify missing information, it has been marked with a question mark. We would like to get it right for the ten year publication, so please send corrections and omissions to the Center for Academic Creativity in the Rice Library, Room 2026.
